

We would like to let you know about a unique program that can assist veterans in advancing their civilian careers.

American Corporate Partners (ACP) is a nationwide mentoring program that matches employees from some of the nation's largest corporations and universities with veterans for the purpose of mentoring, networking, and career counseling. Transitioning from military service to the civilian sector can be difficult, but ACP is dedicated to helping veterans develop the valuable relationships, key skills, and action plans needed for success in private enterprise.

Anyone who has served on active duty since 2001 is eligible to participate. Preference is given to those who have deployed in support of OIF/OEF, those with service connected disabilities, and surviving spouses. Participation is free.

You will be matched one-on-one with a mentor, who is a business leader from one of 30 major corporations, according to your preferences. Your mentor will provide you with the opportunity to leverage your military skills and experiences in your career development.

While not a "jobs program," ACP aims to strengthen the relationship between America's leading corporations and universities and those who have served our country.

ACP is currently active in 17 cities across the U.S. An E-Mentoring program is also offered for service members who live more than 100 miles outside of a participating city.
